

FEAR FOR CHARLTON

Growing Belief That He Also Has Been Murdered.

LITTLE LIGHT ON MYSTERY

Victim of Lake Como Tragedy Put in Trunk Alive.

HUSBAND SEEN DAY OF CRIME

Said Wife Was Ill When Asked Concerning Her—Isolotto Denies Guilt.

COMO, Italy, June 11.—The police have made but little progress in the direction of solving the mystery of the murder of Mrs. Porter Charlton of New York, whose body was found in a trunk at the bottom of Lake Como.

It has been established that the woman was placed in the trunk while yet alive.

The first idea of the police was that she had been murdered while asleep. The mattress and sheets in the bed at the house which she occupied were found covered with blood.

Body Entirely Clothed.

This theory was contradicted by the fact that the body was entirely clothed when found.

Among the documents in the trunk was her certificate of marriage to Noville Castle, dated November 10, 1905, and a letter from a San Francisco attorney, addressed to Castle, in which the lawyer refers to a sum of money to be paid the woman in case of divorce, but advising Castle against divorce.

Nothing has been learned as to the whereabouts of Charlton. It is said by the police that on the evening before the crime was supposed to have been committed Charlton went to a hotel to make a purchase. Asked about his wife, he answered that she was not well. Isolotto, the Russian in custody, still strongly denies any complicity in the crime.

Husband May Be Slain.

There is a growing belief that Charlton may have been slain also. The man known as Charlton was noticed leaving the villa carrying a leather valise three days ago.

Pursuing their investigation, the police gathered up clues which led speedily to the hunt for Charlton and the Russian who gave him his name as Isolotto. The proprietor of the Hotel Suisse, on Lake Como, the keeper of the apothecary shop at the Hotel Suisse, and the inhabitants of several villages in the neighborhood were able to supply information of the whereabouts of the couple.

The landowner said that a couple who called themselves Mr. and Mrs. Charlton had been staying at the Hotel Suisse. He described the Mrs. Charlton, and his description fitted that of the dead woman.

He volunteered the opinion that the couple were married recently. He heard the woman crying often late in the night. He seemed to be an intimate friend of the Charltons.

Disturbed by Woman's Shrieks.

The guests of the hotel complained that they were disturbed by the woman's shrieks. One morning very early the proprietor was aroused by shrieks. He found that the woman had hidden in a cupboard, hoping to escape her husband, but that she had found her husband and was dragging her to the street. The landowner said he was obliged to turn the reputation of his hotel to order them out.

They knew where to go, apparently, without inquiry. On this point the apothecary of Cornobio was of use. He said that he had heard the names had met in his shop an affable Russian, and that after some conversation the Russian had taken them to his villa near Moltrasio whenever they cared to take it.

Fleeing the story together, the police learned that Mrs. Charlton had been in the morning and were conveyed to the Villa Moltrasio.

The villagers and tradesmen who supplied the villa were perfectly familiar with the appearance of both husband and wife. They gave scraps of information to the effect that the woman usually spoke English and the man French.

People who went to the villa thought that the man was speaking French in preference to a language he knew much better. These persons noticed that the Russian was often at the villa and that he was an intimate friend of the Charltons. Occasionally they made excursions together or were three at boat-riding parties.

Villa Closed Three Days.

Three days before the body was found the villa was closed. Persons who went there found that the doors were locked, and the windows were barred. The suddenness of the abandonment created some discussion, village talk which died away then, but which revived keenly yesterday.

First of all the police reached out by telegraph for the known names of Porter and the Russian Isolotto. The frontiers and the ports were notified and all departing ships and trains searched. The trail of Charlton was followed. The efforts of the authorities, but a few rapidly followed, led to the arrest at Rignano of Constantine Isolotto.

The man said he lived in St. Petersburg. He admitted that he knew the Americans, but he gave confused or contradictory replies when the police pressed him closely.

Isolotto says that the last time he saw Charlton was Monday of this week. He added that Mr. Charlton was a writer and that he had lent him two of her books.

Results of Post-Mortem.

A post-mortem examination has been held in the presence of the king's procurator. The examination was conducted in secret and lasted three hours.

In addition to seven holes on the head, which were not mortal, the surgeons discovered a nasty wound on the face, which had broken the nasal bone and displaced the woman's features.

The doctors also ascertained that the woman had been shut up alive in the trunk and had died of suffocation. They also discovered physiological anomalies which they refused to divulge.

DRIVE OUT HEBREWS

Evictions From Summer Homes in Russia Numerous.

EVEN THE SICK SUFFER

Many Are Forced to Depart From Watering Places.

RUN DOWN BY THE POLICE

BERLIN, June 11.—According to dispatches received here by the Jewish Aid Society, Hebrews are being unmercifully evicted from their summer country residences throughout Russia.

These dispatches set forth that Hebrews are not even permitted to reside in the suburban towns, while the sick who are visiting watering places are examined by government commissioners to determine whether their state of health makes their sojourn in these places necessary. In most instances they are driven out. One dispatch says:

"The police in the province of Smolensk are drawing mounted cordons around whole districts daily. Every Jew unable to fully establish a right of domicile is arrested. Many Jews are hiding in the surrounding woods, where the police are hunting them like wild game. Numbers are fleeing to the country, abandoning their homes and effects. Most of those engaged in the grain trade are not allowed to visit the country districts to deal with the farmers, and accordingly have given up their business."

KIEV, June 11.—Forty-five Jewish families were today expelled from Kiev. Of these, twenty were Jews who were forced to leave the city without preparation. The others had been given three days in which to arrange for their departure.

Report of the Trouble.

Simon Wolf of this city, chairman of the board of delegates of civil rights of the Union of American Hebrew Congresses, is in receipt from the State Department of a copy of a report made to the department by the American embassy at St. Petersburg outlining, in brief, the present situation respecting the threatened expulsion of Jews from Kiev, Russia.

The order of expulsion, it is stated, was not carried out, but was held in abeyance pending the settlement of the situation by the Russian government. Subsequent to the receipt of this information by the department, the American embassy at St. Petersburg, through Post Wheeler, the charge d'affaires, submitted to the department a somewhat elaborate report concerning the anti-semitic agitation in Russia, which, he says, is not clearly understood in many quarters. He also gave the course of his report Mr. Wheeler says:

"Before May 22-June 4, 1907, certain Jews holding certificates of the First Jewish Congress, which were issued in 1905-1906, upon the issuance of this circular the Jews of the First Congress, who were holding certificates, deemed it no longer necessary. They also began to take up other lines of trade which were forbidden to them by the terms of their previous certificates. Under the pressure of the duma M. Stolypin was obliged, in March of this year, to repeal the circular, and a strict enforcement of the law was ordered."

Expulsion for All.

"The situation was now adverse, not only for those Jews who had illegally established a residence, but also for those who, previously possessing the right of residence, had failed to take out the requisite certificates and had gone into forbidden lines of business. These Jews, who were expelled, lost the privileges previously held. It was a question, therefore, of the expulsion of all alike."

"The wholesale order gave rise to so many protests, both from the Jews affected by it and from commercial organizations, which depicted any disturbance of the business conditions of the section, that a commission was appointed to consider the situation, and at the same time a commissioner was sent from the department to investigate the matter and report the same purpose."

"It is this commission which has now reported. Latest advice gives the detailed results of its examination as follows:

Cases examined, 1,150; allowed to remain, 70; expulsions confirmed, 980; cases still undecided, 30."

"The total number of cases decided adversely, it will be noted, is considerably below the number first alleged, and it is probable, as stated in dispatch No. 10, that a sufficient number of those who failed to renew their valid certificates will be allowed to remain by paying for the privilege, to materially lessen the number finally expelled."

No Violence Expected.

"There is at present little likelihood that the carrying out of the order of expulsion will be the signal for any act of violence."

It will be noted from the text of the State Department's official advice that M. Stolypin's action in repealing the circular of 1905-1906, which was taken by Mr. Pinchot, who spoke on "Our National Resources and How to Conserve Them," Mr. Pinchot said:

"Conservation has captured the nation. Its progress during the last twelve months is amazing. Official opposition to the conservation movement, whatever damage it has done or still threatens to the public interest, is being rapidly overcome. The grasp of conservation upon the minds and consciences of our people. Efforts to obscure or belittle the issue have only served to make it larger and clearer in the public estimation. The conservation movement cannot be checked by the baseless charges that it will prevent development, or that every man who tells the plain truth is either a muck-raker or a demagogue. It has taken firm hold on our national moral sense, and when an issue does that it has won."

"The conservation movement is a moral issue, and the heart of it is this: For whose benefit shall our natural resources be conserved? For the benefit of us all, or for the use and profit of the few? This truth is so obvious and the question itself so simple that the attitude toward conservation of any man in public or private life indicates his stand in the fight for public rights."

"All monopoly rests on the unregulated control of natural resources and natural advantages, and such control by the few is a menace to the conservation of the help of politics. The alliance between business and politics is the most dangerous thing in our political life. It is the snake that we must kill. The special interests must get out of politics."

CONGRESS IS ASSAILED FOR BREACH OF TRUST

Lawmakers Declared to Be Under Control of Interests.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 11.—Following an informal reception to Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield this evening about 500 members and friends of the St. Paul Roosevelt Club filled the large banquet room of the Ryan Hotel, thus fulfilling a long-deferred tribute to Messrs. Pinchot and Garfield in recognition of their work in assisting former President Roosevelt in his efforts for conservation of public domain.

Besides the guests of the evening, among those seated at the speakers' table were Gov. Eberhart, Mayor Keller, President Hugh T. Halbert of the Roosevelt Club and several Yale alumni friends of Mr. Pinchot.

Forestry in Decorations.

The decorations of the speakers' table consisted of miniature mountains, forests, waterfalls and roads with a miniature train propelled by electricity whirling past.

Justice E. A. Jaggard of the Minnesota supreme court was toastmaster. Introducing Judge Jaggard, President Halbert of the Roosevelt Club awakened the enthusiasm of the banqueters by a reference to an unnamed new party, some of the leaders of which, he said, were present. He said, in part:

"The Roosevelt Club has consistently stood for the conservation of ideals and the conservation of men and against plunder and graft."

Capital Near Exhaustion.

"This country has lived on its capital, but at last has awakened to the fact that it will soon exhaust its natural resources by the inequitable distribution of its wealth in direct violation of the law of equal opportunity of its citizens. This condition has brought about the formation of a new party without name, but not without an issue nor without leaders."

"That party has two wings composed of those called conservatives and those called progressives, but the real division is composed of those who favor the rights of the people as against those who favor a monopoly of the benefits of the public domain."

Leaders of the Party.

"That party may be unnamed, but its leaders are Theodore Roosevelt and our honored guests, Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield."

Gov. Eberhart was the first speaker and his topic was "The State and Conservation." Mayor Keller spoke on "The Ultimate Results of Conservation," and the set address of the evening was that by Mr. Pinchot, who spoke on "Our National Resources and How to Conserve Them."

Progress of Conservation.

"Conservation has captured the nation. Its progress during the last twelve months is amazing. Official opposition to the conservation movement, whatever damage it has done or still threatens to the public interest, is being rapidly overcome. The grasp of conservation upon the minds and consciences of our people. Efforts to obscure or belittle the issue have only served to make it larger and clearer in the public estimation.
